

Stanislav Krapivnik: Broken Promises: The Iran-Israel Escalation

See Full Interview: <https://www.youtube.com/live/oWXaAN633c0?si=jE9FDVBmkTJxbivJ> Follow me:
Substack: https://substack.com/@dialogueworks?utm_campaign=profile&utm_medium=profile-page
X (Twitter): https://x.com/Dialogue_NRA Patreon: https://patreon.com/Dialogueworks?

#Nima

What is happening in the United States? Tulsi Gabbard resigned, and she was, in my opinion, one of the most important figures in the Trump administration because before, you know, in January, when we thought that she was going to be part of the administration, we thought that she was going to be against the war in the Middle East. She was going to help Donald Trump in the case of the war in Ukraine. Nothing of that sort has happened. We have, you know, the continuation of the war in Ukraine, the war in the Middle East, which we didn't have before. And she didn't do anything. She was against, you know, the expansion of American forces in the Middle East when it comes to Syria and those problems in Syria. She was advocating for withdrawing the troops from Syria — no more war in the Middle East — but we haven't heard that much from her position when the war against Iran started.

And right now, if you remember, the Trump administration, the White House, by the way, if I'm not mistaken, a month ago, they announced that she had to resign before the midterm election. Right now, we've heard today, all of a sudden, we've learned that she resigned. And because of her husband having some sort of bone cancer, that's why she has to, you know, help. She has to help him during the medical process that he is in. And what is your understanding of Tulsi Gabbard? Is that going to be a big loss for the Trump administration, or are they not going to be that influenced by losing Tulsi Gabbard? And it's not just about Tulsi Gabbard. We had Emeritus Fox yesterday; she resigned as well. It seems to me that these resignations are somehow related to the war in the Middle East. Your understanding of what has happened?

#Stanislav

You know, when you said something happened in America, that's just like, yeah, okay, which time? This time of the day that something happened in America? That's just kind of like, you know, the endless train wreck that is modern America. There was a prediction that most of the people that came in with Trump wouldn't be there by the end of the year. So a lot of them have made it past the end of the year, but they're falling out left and right. And Trump gets rid of a lot of people around him. And he's a bully about it too, by the way. We saw with Kent. Now there are investigations on Kent, yeah, for telling the truth. And Kent left. And Trump mean-mouthed his people too, you know, after they leave.

He doesn't do it to their face, but he does it behind their back. With Tulsi Gabbard, you know, it's not a big loss, honestly speaking, at all. There was a lot of hope in her. But the first thing that kind of looked wrong is when Danny Davis—she wanted Danny Davis to be her assistant—and because he wouldn't bend the knee to the Israeli lobby, that was gone. So that already started the alarm bells ringing for anybody who's paying attention because, hey, she must have bent the knee. And her rhetoric started becoming more pro-Israeli. I'm sorry, I've got to change my position. I've got an old army injury that's flared up, so I've got to lift my leg up.

It moved me down a little bit, so I'm still in there. So yeah, that was already one of those signs, but she was still against the Iran war, and she testified to Congress that Iran's not looking to make nuclear weapons, at which point she got back-slapped. And off she goes, becomes a wallflower. Now, to understand Tulsi Gabbard, she was the up-and-rising star in the Democratic Party until she fell out with the Democratic Party. She went over to the Republican Party. If she had just stayed a senator or she'd become some other sort, that'd be one thing. But she's now in the Trump administration, and if she gets gone from that, fired by Trump, her political career is pretty much over.

She doesn't have a home. America only has two sides of the same coin. So what do you do? Well, she kind of became a wallflower and nobody heard her. There were even people putting up mock posters of Tulsi Gabbard: "Have you seen this woman? She's been missing in the White House for so many weeks." And the unfortunate part is all the hope that was placed in her, the things that she could get done. As we've seen with a lot of hope placed in a lot of people, and Trump himself to begin with, it's all been misplaced because the end results—well, with her, I mean, she was neutered fast enough to serve the Israeli agenda.

Other people either got fired, left, or were always with the Israeli agenda or the neocon agenda. And they were just pretending. And that includes Trump himself. You know, Trump's been the biggest disappointment for most people, period. And you can watch some people, you know, they try to excuse him. They're trying to excuse him. And as time went on, they stopped excusing him. Some people are still trying to excuse him. Most of MAGA, actual MAGA, left. Because they weren't MAGA. What's left is MAGA. Or maybe MIDGA—Make Trump Great Again. Those are his groupie cult followers that are left. These are people that bought Trump coins, which are down by 96% from their high.

So, you know, to be part of the Trump family, gave him $30 billion as a present for him and Melania, because Melania also had Melania coins that came out. This is the reality of it. And like I said, unfortunately, she got very little done. She did give us some insights early on into Trump. I remember it was February of last year. Maybe it was even March, where she was talking about how, because Trump doesn't like to read, that should be setting off alarm bells already in people's minds.

Because Trump doesn't like to read, they had to rearrange the briefs for the president from having papers with words on them to something that looked like a Fox News brief. And what's a Fox News brief? If you look at Fox News or CNN or any of this crap, at best—and I'm not even talking about propaganda.

I'm just talking about news value. At best, you skim the very top of an issue. They give you the loud-sounding headlines and just skim a little bit of the fat off the top, and you really—you know enough to not know anything. You know enough to have your opinion formed by someone else. And when that's the brief for the President of the United States on things, you know, that's bad. That's very bad. Especially a man like Trump, who really doesn't know a lot about most things. When it comes to any world affairs, he totally does not know economics. We know that. And all the fools that believed him when he said, you know, yeah, the evil manufacturers—why they're evil, I'm not quite sure—but the evil manufacturers will pay the tariffs. No. But, you know, the majority of American people believed him.

And this is just as an example. So when she gave that view that, you know, the briefs are going to be like this, you know, why is anybody then surprised when they find out that Trump's Iran war briefs were two minutes of things America blowing up? You know, not American things blowing up, but only the things America is blowing up for two minutes. And that's it. That's all you need to know, Mr. President, about the war that you've started for the day. So unfortunately, yeah, she just didn't just underperform. She was a total disappointment and failure.

#Nima

Yeah. Actually, she gave us a briefing. You remember, a briefing on Iran and the nuclear program. And she said there is no sign that Iran is pursuing nuclear weapons. Then Donald Trump came out before the war started, before the first round of wars. Donald Trump said, I don't care what she said.

#Stanislav

Yeah. Come here, Chelsea. Come here. Pow! Back in the closet. If we want to hear from you, we'll pull you out and squeeze your head.

#Nima

That was the end, I think. We haven't heard that much from her since then. And with the war, when the war started, we haven't heard anything. Anything.

#Stanislav

I mean, I hope her husband doesn't have cancer. Bone cancer—well, any kind of cancer—is a bitch. Bone cancer is one of the worst. And, you know, I pray that everything goes well for her. But as a member of the cabinet, absolute disappointment. Absolute disappointment.

#Nima

But when you're in an administration like the Trump administration, what else can you do?

#Stanislav

Everybody's against you. You know what you can do? Yes, Massa. What do you want me to say, Massa? You tell me what you want me to think, Massa. I repeat whatever you say, Massa. Yes, Massa. You're the man, Massa. You're always right, Massa. That's right. That's the way you survive in the Trump administration. Exactly. His ego. That's it. That's it. No matter how stupid a thing he says, yes, Massa, you're the man, Massa. That's it. If you're not willing to do that, if you have any decency, any self-respect, figure out who you're about to serve. It's not the American people. It's not your constituents. That's who you have in power.

#Nima

That's why we had Joe Kent resign from his position, because he couldn't do anything about it.

#Stanislav

And, you know, he went after Kent. Kent's wife, who's CIA, she died from the head chopper Jelani's people, who, by the way, Trump with pride said, "He's my man, and I put him into power." You know, the guy that's swimming in blood—Christian blood, Alawite blood, Shia blood. You know, the guy who's got photos of him killing Americans, you know, cutting women's and children's heads off. I mean, he wasn't exactly camera-shy about that. But now he's playing basketball with CENTCOM command.

#Nima

And just two days ago, he received two perfumes from Donald Trump's special envoy.

#Stanislav

Woo! The child of death, the smell of a dead child and a dead woman. Something like that. Rotting corpse.

#Nima

This is how reality is distorted in the Trump administration.

#Stanislav

My question was, after he visited the Trump administration, did Trump wash the blood of little children off his hands, or did he lick it off his hands?

#Nima

Sass, when you look at the situation between Israel and Lebanon... you've seen what Hezbollah is doing right now. What is your understanding of the strategy of Hezbollah, and how effective is that, in your opinion?

#Stanislav

With what Hezbollah has, I think they're pretty effective. I mean, Israel is out to wipe the land clean. Israeli Zionist backers in the West are there to make sure they help. Apple, by the way—Apple Maps—Ethan Levins, if you know who he is, I was talking with him. He was the first one that saw and published the Apple Maps that had wiped all the Lebanese settlements off of southern Lebanon except for Tyre. You know, 3,000-year-old villages, all their names disappeared because they're preparing to replace them with Israeli names. And Israel is out to not just murder off anybody that's left, that hasn't gone, and keep killing them as they've left, but Israel is trying to exterminate any evidence that these people ever existed.

I mean, these villages are 3,000 years old, some are older. They've survived. I mean, much of their population has been killed many times because of different waves of invaders and wars. But the villages have survived. People repopulated them. Tyre as a city is, what, about 4,500, 5,000 years old, somewhere around there. Alexander the Great was building, quite literally, a bridge from the mainland to the original city of Tyre, which was an island. We have plenty of evidence and everything archaeological as to how old the city is. The Israelis gave them orders to leave. So they're telling sovereign people, a sovereign nation, you have to leave.

If you don't, we're going to level all these buildings anyway and wipe the city out because it's not our city. So we'll just exterminate our history and everything else. The Israelis are an out-of-control, psychopathic regime. And the problem with that regime is, replacing Netanyahu will actually make things worse. That's the lunacy that you live in. You know, there's 20, maybe 30% of the population that's against all of this. 70%, maybe 80%, somewhere between that, is all for this. And they want it worse. They want more murder. They want more genocide. They want more dog rapes of prisoners. They want more hangings. They want more organs taken out.

They want more. They can't get enough of the blood. They frigging could not get enough of the blood. I mean, when people get on grassy knolls and have picnics watching other people get murdered, when settlers bring their children on the boats and ride up and down the Gaza Strip at night watching Gaza getting destroyed and telling their children, this is where you're going to be living as soon as we get rid of this vermin. And this isn't conjecture. This is videotaped. They post it on the Internet with pride. So this isn't something, you know, Stas decided to make up. You know, maybe he's raised them. This is videos.

Their own videos. These are programs against Palestinian villages, and not just Palestinian Muslim villages—Palestinian Christian villages. They go out there and they burn people alive in their houses. They destroy their crops. They steal their sheep. I mean, just look at Jerusalem. Jerusalem used to be a quarter Christian. It's a hell of a lot less than that now. And, you know, you get Christians assaulted every single day—priests, nuns. We just had that recent incident where a nun was pushed and kicked by one of these psychopaths. I mean, this is something that's a very sick society. And God forbid, you know, that society, if you're an Oriental Jew, a traditional Jew, you know, one of the people who actually lived there long before the ones from Europe arrived.

The ones that, you know, said, "We were here before Israel, we'll be here after Israel"—those people get beaten even worse than the Palestinians because they're seen as race traitors. You know, this is a very sick society whose first and foremost action on anything is violence, including against each other. I mean, this is... I don't know how else to describe it. And we see what the— I mean, when Israeli snipers start whacking themselves because, I guess, putting bullets in children's heads finally got to them, you know, and they're screaming at night and are drugged up because they've killed so many children—well, at least they had some humanity left in them to make them feel guilty. I don't think a lot of them even have that.

This is what we're facing. And as long as the European psychopaths, and not to mention the American psychopaths, are backing it full tilt—remember what Merz said—they're doing civilization's dirty work. So, in other words, if you're not part of the EU or the US, you're not civilized, you're animals to be cleared. Whether you're Shia, whether you're Sunni, whether you're Orthodox, whether you're Buddhist, whether you're anything else, you're just animals to be cleared. That's the message that everybody should have heard. The rest of humanity should have heard. These psychopaths, they're not done. We beat their grandfathers' teeth in when they came last time—the brown plague—and the brown plague's up again.

And we're going to have to do it all over again, except this time leave them in ruins. I mean, we're back to the Nazis, except the Zionist Jews, anyway, are now part of the club. So we're back to the Nazis. And Europe is, you know, there's a reason the U.S. unblocked its archives on Germans that it had taken from Germany—on Germans, on who was, you know, on their backgrounds from the 1940s, from the early 1940s—whose grandfather was in the SS or Gestapo and all that, and they've now opened it up. It's to normalize for the German population. Go look up your granddad. Yeah, he was a Nazi. See, it's okay. Nazis are good. It's good. Be a Nazi again. And they're doing this on purpose. It's everywhere in the West. It's permeating everything in the West.

#Nima

It's cool. Do we know how many of these Iron Dome batteries Israel produces per year, or are other countries producing for Israel? Because at least in the last two or three days, we've seen five or six of them being hit by FAA drones. And what do we know about that?

#Stanislav

Well, the Iron Dome can't stop ballistic missiles. It's not made for that. It can do drones, particularly like Shahed-1 drones. They're pretty slow, and they're loud and noisy. The more modern versions of Shaheds are based off the Russian Gerans. I don't think they can stop those. They fly higher, they're a lot faster. And I'm not talking about the Geran-3s, which are jet-powered. There's nothing it can really do with those, and they're maneuvering. But the older versions, the first versions, yeah, they're pretty slow. But hey, they took out American radar systems that are worth half a billion dollars. So, you know, you want to talk about a payoff—whoever piloted that one should have gotten a bonus from the Iranian government.

But if you're looking at what they were created for, it was to deal with the rockets that Hamas was firing. Now, Hamas is firing rockets into Israel. They're pretty dumb, homemade rockets. I mean, it's just ballistic rockets. There's no guiding them in. They just fire off a bunch of them, and they land wherever, right, in a general direction. They're not much of a payload. I mean, this is homemade stuff, basically. What Iron Dome did—the smart part of Iron Dome—is the radar calculations. Because what they do is they pick up all the rockets, and they're just ballistic arcs. You know, they've got the parabolic arc, and they're calculating where they're going to land and what's there. And if it's not a village or a built-up area or some base, they just let it go.

Maybe there's one or two houses out there. It's just not worth shooting them because it's too expensive. Stuff that's heading into some village or some base, they'll start shooting that. And they were pretty damn effective against that kind of weapon. Iran's shooting ballistic missiles in. PAC-3s barely handle ballistic missiles. PAC-2s aren't designed for it. We've seen PAC-2s firing off—and this is Patriot PAC-2s—firing up to one count. I think there were seven or eight missiles they fired off, and the ballistic missile just flies right past all of them and blows up somewhere. You know, the camera turned, and somewhere a couple of buildings over blew up. That's the reality. Iron Dome can't do anything about that. So Iron Dome in Abu Dhabi would be good for any slow drones or maybe very slow cruise missiles, though that's questionable. So it's there.

Part of the missile components are manufactured in the U.S., part in Israel, but they're pretty low on ammunition these days. They can only produce so much so fast. So any system can be overwhelmed. And, yes, you're right. I've watched—I've got one of these videos I'm going to put in, actually part of my update that I'm going to videotape after this—where one of these Iron Domes is taken out, one of the launchers taken out by an FPV drone. Yeah, and the problem is for Israel, you know, Israel is relatively small, and these Iron Dome missiles don't have that long range. So, like it or not, you gotta get them close enough to the border so they don't have to fly that far. And, by the way, for the Israelis, this is a disaster not just because this one launcher was taken out, but because they've got tanks, they've got other equipment.

It's all been taken out on the Israeli side now, not even the stuff that's inside of Lebanon. And Lebanon has been a very bloody nose for them. I mean, yeah, sure, they're great at taking out whole villages, especially when there's nobody there—blowing them up, demolitions, or shooting, dropping 2,000-pound bombs onto 10-story apartment buildings to take out everybody in it. No, they're good at that. But fighting face-to-face, or worse, drone-to-face, with Hezbollah has been an unmitigated disaster for the Israelis. So we'll see how that goes, how long they can keep swallowing. But right now, I mean, they are rabid with a taste of blood. You saw that the last Freedom Flotilla.

#Nima

Yeah.

#Stanislav

They've started picking some of those off a thousand kilometers out. A lot of them were picked off over 500 kilometers out. That's international waters. You're not defending your waters. That's international waters. That's called piracy. But worst of all wasn't the beatings, the sexual assaults, the humiliations of these volunteers who were all unarmed civilians. That's not the worst that came out of this, what the Israelis did to them. The worst is when they get dropped off in Cyprus and places like that, and what the European governments, a lot of their own citizens, they just didn't give a damn. And not just the European governments—New Zealand and Australia.

New Zealand told the New Zealanders there, these people have been stripped of their documents, they've been stripped of their money. And the New Zealand government told them, it's your problem, not ours, survive however you want. They wouldn't give them any help from the embassy. I mean, this is how spinelessly pathetic the parasite class of the EU and Western governments are. They're parasites. Oh, they'll take, they'll take. But they break that social contract instantly because they're all bought and paid for by somebody else. And look, the Republican Party in America, with Massey being gone, who's left? Ron Paul, Rand Paul. I'm sorry. Yeah. Yeah. Pretty much that's it.

#Nima

Laura Loomer today said that he's going to be next in line. They're going to go after him.

#Stanislav

Of course they are. The Republican Party needs to go ahead. And the Democrats aren't that far behind. They're about 80% there. The Republican Party is basically 99.9% there. The Republican Party might as well register as a foreign agent under the Foreign Agent Laws of 1948 U.S., because they are a foreign agent. They have no representation of the American people. They are an absolutely owned entity, and they are all getting paid by people through a foreign government. They represent that foreign government. I mean, Ted Cruz told everything on Tucker: I wanted to be the best defender. I wanted to go to the Senate. I wanted to be the best defender of Israel in the Senate. Not the people of Texas that elected this parasite, but of the Israeli government.

I mean, that should be an instant disqualifier for, you know, being a member of parliament, of any parliament. If somebody says something like that, okay, we're stripping you of your mandate. Go have a special election. And you're banned from running. That should be something that the parliament votes on. You don't have that kind of law in the U.S. But Russia does, by the way. Russia does. They can strip a member of parliament of their mandate if they do something like that, or if they have dual citizenship and they didn't disclose it. Because you're not allowed to be a member of parliament if you have dual citizenship. U.S., that's not a problem. It's very questionable how many of those people have dual citizenship with Israel.